SIMMONDS'

NABOB WHISKEY!

THE PUREST AND BEST FOR ALL MEDICAL AND FAMILY PURPOSES.

Has been sold in all the Eastern States and given universal satisfaction.

It is highly recommended by the Faculty for all cases of Nervousness, Weakness, Debility, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Etc.

It is now introduced to the public of the Pacific Slope, endorsed by the following certificates of the eminent Dr. S. Dana Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, and Dr. H. C. Louderback, of St. Louis, Mo., both gentlemen prominent in their profession, and which is a guarantee to all buyers of its purity and quality.

I can show thousands of letters from private persons and from all parts of the Union and Canada, testifying to its merits and the benefit it has afforded as a family remedy and tonic.

Sold by all Druggists and Grocers by the case or bottle. Country orders promptly attended to.

BY THE GALLON OR BARREL.

CAUTION.—None Genuine unless labeled with my Signature over the Cork.

G. SIMMONDS, Sold Proprietor.

Laboratory and Office, No. 4 State St.,
Boston, September 3, 1879.

GEO. SIMMONDS, Esq.—Sir: The sample marked "Nabob Whiskey," received from you, has been analyzed with the following results: It is of selected alcoholic strength and FREE FROM ADDED FLAVORING OILS, acids, metals, or other deleterious substances.

The whiskey is pure, of superior quality, and suitable for medicinal and medical purposes.

Respectfully,
S. DANA HAYES,
State Assayer for Massachusetts.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 30, 1879.

G. SIMMONDS, Esq.—I have been using your Nabob Whiskey for some time, and have no hesitation in saying that it is, without exception, the purest article I have used either medicinally or for family purposes.

To many of my patients who have been suffering with indigestion and nervous affections, I have prescribed your Nabob Whiskey for their use, and I take pleasure in saying to you the effect has been most satisfactory.

Please send me by express six cases, also a sample case of your X.V. O. P. Brandy, C. O. D. and oblige yours, very truly,
H. C. LOUDERBACK, M. D.

So long as there are ill to which flesh is heir, and the cares and labors of life to breed disease, so long will it be necessary to use medicine to contract the evils produced and maintain the health of the human family. Many kinds of medicine are frequently offered to the public for one special disease and another, and if the truth were known it would doubtless be found that in the majority of cases these nostrums have done far more harm than good. Indeed one of the greatest evils of the present day is the existence of quack compounds which contain ingredients inimical to health, and the greatest care, therefore, should be taken by invalids, in using many unknown drugs which cannot be taken with impunity, no matter what may be alleged to the contrary.

Now, experience has shown that Nabob Whiskey is one of the best medicinal preparations known, and is highly recommended by the Faculty for all cases of nervousness, weakness, debility, dyspepsia, indigestion, etc. Its popularity throughout the Eastern States has been great, and it comes to the Pacific Coast endorsed by the certificates of Dr. S. Dana Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, and Dr. H. C.
Louderback of St. Louis, Missouri. These certificates are most direct in their statements, averring that Nabob Whiskey is, without exception, the purest article that can be used either medicinally or for family purposes. It is particularly efficacious in cases of indigestion and nervous affections, and can be used with the utmost confidence. The analysis shows that this whiskey is of standard alcoholic strength, and free from flavoring oils, acids, metals or other deleterious substances. Dr. Hayes further says that it is pure, superior quality, and suitable for medicinal and medical purposes. Such recommendations are the strongest that can be made, and the fact that thousands of letters testifying to the merits of the whiskey as a family remedy and tonic, no further proof of its excellence need be given.

THE CAMPAIGN.

The campaign is rapidly drawing to a close, and in our next issue we will be able to give the result of it. A fight that one year ago promised to be one of the most enthusiastic and hard fought campaigns the State had ever seen, has proved to be one of the tamest. None of the parties are enthusiastic this year. The Republicans are quiet because their candidate, being a monopoly man, is not sympathized with by the people; the Democrats don't "enthuse" because the head of their ticket is of another party; the W. C. P. is inactive for the reason that with the exception of Governor, they have no show of electing a single officer, and the Workingmen are not making a noise because there are not enough of them. The fight is between the Radicals and the Democrats, with the Workingmen next, and the new party bringing up the rear. Glenn and several others on the Democratic State and district tickets will be elected, and our county ticket will be carried almost solid. It will be a hard matter to decide what sort of a victory it is, and there is not likely to be much crowing done by anybody.

The Republican State Convention of Louisiana will be held at New Orleans October 20th.

In about a year twelve executions have taken place in Russia for political offenses.

Grant expresses a willingness to accept the Presidency of the American Canal Company.

Since Friday last $500,000 worth of U. S. bonds have been shipped from London to New York.

The war between the Union Pacific and Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroads regarding freight rates has been ended by a compromise.

Democrats, Workingmen and New Constitutionists should all give their support to J. H. Harlan, their candidate for Joint Senator for Yolo and Solano counties. Mr. Harlan's record is unspotted, and he will make an able representative. His majority in Yolo will be very large.

Vote for J. O. Maxwell for Recorder.

CHEEK.

Of all the sublime exhibitions of cheek that have been made before the people of any country since Philosopher Pickett made an attempt to sit on the Supreme bench of this State, that of John M. Kelley, in trying to induce the Democratic State Central Committee to withdraw the name of C. E. Wilcoxson from the ticket and substitute that of Mr. Kelley, is surely entitled to a gold medal as the best specimen of the pure unadulterated article on record. In the name of common sense what reason could be given for such an act on the part of the Committee? Mr. Wilcoxson is as far ahead of Kelley, in all the requirements that go to make a competent and able officer, as a statesman is superior to a boy who is just learning his letters. We congratulate the people of this district on the fact that the Committee would listen to no such propositions as he made to them, but treated them with scorn. As will be seen by reference to a card from the Secretary of our County Committee, in another column, the report has been started that the proposition was to withdraw both the candidates and unite on a new man. The State Central Committee declare this to be false, and a letter from Mr. Wilcoxson to a resident of this town says that he (Mr. Wilcoxson) had three propositions made to him, and they all were for him to decline in favor of Kelley. As the Hon. John M. has doubtless arrived at the sensible conclusion that he will be a bad third in the race, he thought that by getting Mr. Wilcoxson to withdraw he could at least be second. The Democrats of this district are going to vote for Caleb E. Wilcoxson for member of the Board of Equalization from this district, because he is the most competent man of the two—that is the Democratic and Republican nominees. When competency is considered, Mr. Kelley is not in the fight.

Vote for Fred. Klays for Assessor.

The Latest Radical Advice.

The Radical press is now trying to convince the new Constitution men that White is a stronger candidate than Dr. Glenn. They tell them that if they wish to elect an anti-railroad Governor they should throw Glenn overboard and support the W. C. P. candidate. Why this interference on the part of the press with the affairs of the new Constitution people, why this "disinterested" advice? The reason is too plain. The Railroad Radicals see that Dr. Glenn is gaining strength daily, and they feel if something is not done to check this tidal wave of public sentiment for Glenn, their ship, Geo. C. Perkins, Captain, will be washed ashore and destroyed; therefore they hope to build up White at the expense of Dr. Glenn, and by thus dividing more equally the opposing forces expect to get their own candidates into office. Does any sensible man believe that these Radicals would volunteer advice that would tend to help either the cause of Dr. Glenn or Mr. White? Certainly not. Their object is to place Geo. C. Perkins in the gubernatorial chair, and it matters little to them how low the tricks resorted to in order to accomplish their purpose. However, the people will not be fooled, but will elect the reform candidate, Dr. Hugh J. Glenn.—[Napa Reporter.]

All the political strikers in this city and county, and all the men who are popularly credited with the possession of that peculiar kind of sharpness that enables men to buy votes and not get caught at it, are working in the interest of the Republican Railroad ticket. Not one of that class of men can be found to say a good word for Dr. H. J. Glenn, nor for B. F. Langford. Many of them can be heard to say that White stands a better show than Glenn; but that is about all they say in favor of any of the Workingmen's candidates. This condition of things, of itself, ought to have some weight with intelligent and honest men who supported the new Constitution.—[Stockton Herald.]

The only way to figure on the politics of this State, at the coming election, is to take the vote for Congressman of the several districts. That will tell nearer than anything else.

During the Constitutional fight the voters asked themselves who it was that opposed the new law. Let them ask themselves the same question as to the opposition against Glenn.

Vote for Jno. W. Goin for Superintendent of Schools.

EDITOR AND PREACHER.

The principle topic of conversation since Saturday last has been the shooting of I. S. Kalloch by Charles De Young of the Chronicle. The public are already familiar with the facts in the case and there is no use reciting them here. There is a great difference of opinion as to the criminality of the deed, some claiming that it was not justified in any way, while others are as strong in the opinion that the sensational preacher only received his just reward. Looked at from an unbiased standpoint it is difficult to determine which of the parties has the right on his side. Kalloch is the candidate of the W. P. C., for Mayor of San Francisco, and the Chronicle, with Chas. De Young as manager found nothing to mean to say against him, even going so far as to pull his dead father from the grave and parade him before the people as a bad character. If Kalloch had taken a club and beaten this blackmailing editor until he would have cried enough and been glad to publish a retraction, he would have received the plaudits of all good citizens. But when a minister who claims to be a follower of the meek and lowly Jesus, makes use of such vile language as that used by Kalloch in his attack upon the aged mother of the De Youngs, the sympathy we had for him at first is lost. That De Young should wish to resent such an insult is natural, but that he should do it in such a sneaking, cowardly way is brutal. All sympathy for the two principals in the case is taken from them and placed with the dead father and aged mother who have been so vilely slandered to gratify a political spite. The people of San Francisco should see that Kalloch is not elected Mayor of that city, and also that Chas. De Young is punished to the full extent of the law for his cowardly crime.

Justice to the South.

The Philadelphia Record, (Independent) does nothing more than justice to the South in this paragraph: "It would be well for those who are fond of animadverting upon the obstinacy of the South in refusing to accept the frequent fraternal offers of the North to remember that the Southerners were quite ready to take that old-time Liberty man, Salmon P. Chase, of Ohio, as a Presidential candidate in 1868, and that they not only heartily indorsed the nomination for the Presidency four years later of Horace Greeley, the foremost formulator of political abolitionism in the United States, by the Liberal Republicans, but labored earnestly and successfully to secure its ratification by the Democratic National Convention. Greeley's platform, it will be remembered, was "impartial suffrage and universal amnesty." No abandonment or surrender of his life-long convictions was offered by the great editor of the Tribune or demanded by the South. They were willing to take him, without a single pledge, upon pure trust in him as an honest man. If it be asked why, then, the South did not rally to the support of Mr. Hayes after his inauguration, in common gratitude for his liberal Southern policy, and so build up a strong Administration party in that section, the ready and sufficient answer is that they, along with pretty nearly the entire country, regarded him as the impersonation of a gigantic fraud upon the ballot-box, and as tendering, in the offices he gave the Democrats, crumbs of a stolen loaf. The Southerners, like all the rest of us, have many sins to answer for, no doubt, but hypocrisy and cant are not conspicuous among the number. They have no respect for sneaks or their methods."

The Springfield Republican says: The evidence throughout the Cincinnati investigation into the Congressional election in 1878 shows that special Deputy Marshals were appointed, not to keep the peace at the polls, but to increase the Republican vote. A wise provision of the Federal Election Laws requires these officers to be appointed from the qualified voters of the precinct in which they serve. Plain and obvious reasons exist for this enactment, if these officers are to do their duty efficiently. The Federal Marshal testified, however, that in 1878 special Deputy Marshals were selected from Republican wards and sent to act at Democratic polls. Obedience to the plain letter of the election law by the Executive officers of the Government is, to say the least, quite as much a public duty as the passage of appropriations for their execution; about which the Republicans had a good deal to say a short time ago.

Summons No. 98.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT, State of California, County of Yolo.
RECLAMATION DISTRICT No. 108, Plaintiff, vs. W. J. CLARKE, Defendant.
The People of the State of California send Greeting to W. J. CLARKE: You are hereby summoned to appear and answer the complaint of Reclamation District No. 108, in said Court filed against you within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in this county; if served out of this county, but within this Judicial District, within twenty days; but if served on you without said district, then in forty days from such service, exclusive of the day of service, in an action commenced on the 21st day of May, 1879, in said Court. Said action is brought to recover the sum of $1092 84-100 in gold and silver coin of the United States, with interest thereon from the 15th day of March, 1871, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum—being the amount of two assessments levied in Reclamation District No. 108, to-wit: On the E. 1/4 and S. W. 1/4 of Sec. 12, T. 13 N., R. 1 W., Mt. Diablo base and meridian, in Yolo county, California, the sum of $608 72-100, and on the W. 1/4 of Sec. 13, T. 13 N., R. 1 W., Mt. Diablo base and meridian, in Yolo county, California, the sum of $150 12-100; and for a decree of this Court adjudging said several amounts, so assessed, liens on said several tracts of land, and for the purpose of enforcing said liens, that said tracts of land be sold, in the manner provided by law, to satisfy said several assessments, with interest as aforesaid, and costs of suit—all of which will more fully appear by reference to plaintiff's complaint on file herein. And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the complaint as directed, plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.
In testimony whereof, I, D. M. BURNS, Clerk of the Sixth Judicial District Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court at office in Woodland, this 15th day of August, A. D. 1879.

Hurrah for our side. The Democrats are going to win this fight.

Mr. R. Winn was gathered in by the night watchman on Thursday evening.

The "little daily" will live one week more. Its career has been brief and brilliant.

Beerstecher did not put in an appearance at the Workingmen's meeting this week.

Country Schools furnished with supplies at lowest prices at Elston's Drug Store.

The Republican county candidates addressed the citizens of Woodland last night.

The defeated candidates will outnumber those that are elected to one this year.

A mammoth stock of School Books always on hand at Elston's.

Mr. Byrnes is putting up a fine house on First street, just north of Mr. Hunt's residence.

The best speech of the campaign was that made by Gov. Irwin on Tuesday evening of this week.

Best quality canary and mixed bird seed just received at Whittemore & Higginson's Drug Store.

The STANDARD is full of politics this week. As we are fighting in a good cause, we have no apology to make.

The Davisville people had a grand ball and supper and speeches by candidates last night. The Ellis Band furnished music.

White, in his speech on Wednesday night, told of lots of evils in our State government, but he did not offer any plan for their remedy.

We already believe, Mr. Mail, that women are more qualified to vote than ignorant darkies. The Republican party does not believe it, however.

Jos. McKenna made a nice speech on Saturday evening last, but he did not have that vigor in him that a man has when he feels that he will be elected.

And now the small boy gathers sacks and bottles for the purpose of raising the necessary funds with which to attend the coming circus.

Vote for Caleb E. Wilcoxson for member of the Board of Equalization for this District if you want a thoroughly competent and honest man for the position.

The voters of Cache Creek township should see that Sam. Montgomery's name is on their tickets if they want to put a good man in as Constable for this township.

Is there a candid man in Yolo county who does not believe that the Democratic county ticket is by far the best ticket before the people? If there is we have not seen him.

One week from to-day the Sunday School excursion to San Francisco will take place. Fare from Woodland to San Francisco and return, $4.50. Children half price. See ad.

The daily Republican has talked against Barney so much that it has made votes in his favor, and the race is between Barney and Lawson, with Lawson about 200 votes in the lead.

When a man runs behind his ticket in his own county, it speaks volumes. Just notice the returns from Sutter and Yolo counties on the vote for member of the Board of Equalization, when they are all in.

The Democratic candidates have been visiting different parts of the county this week, and have been well received wherever they have been. The greater portion of them will be elected.

C. P. Berry, our next Congressman from this district, Adjutant-General Walsh and H. C. Gesford, candidate for Supt. of Public Instruction, will address the citizens of Woodland to-night. Don't fail to hear them.

Harlan, Hershey, Bush, Lawson, Pendegast, Maxwell, Kean, Klays, Grant, Goin, and so on to the end of the ticket. Can you find any better men than these in the county? If you can, they are not up for office this year.

We received a communication this week from Winters which was no doubt intended for a political article, but consisted entirely of abuse of a correspondent of the Democrat who is not a candidate. It is respectfully declined.

We heard a man say the other day that a monument ought to be erected by the people to the memory of De Young when that person dies. If De Young will only put himself in condition to receive a monument the majority of the people of this State would think it a good thing.

The Handel and Hayden Society will be called together week after next to make arrangements about the County Musical Festival, which it is proposed to give during the meeting of the Teachers' Institute in October next. Due notice of the time and place will be given.

We want every Democrat in Woodland to be on hand to-night to hear our candidate for Congress. And particularly we would like to see the young men of the party turn out to greet one of their number, Henry C. Gesford, candidate for Superintendent of Public Instruction. He is eloquent, and, being an old schoolmate, we are proud of him.

Dr. Hugh J. Glenn, our next Governor came up on the train last night as far as Woodland, and proceeded to Colusa by private conveyance. The Dr. was on his way home in response to a telegram informing him that his wife was very ill. A large crowd gathered to see him at the Capital Hotel, and as he drove off he was given three rousing cheers.

A Stunner.

BLACK'S STATION, Aug. 26, 1879.

ED. STANDARD.—As one who likes to know the cost of things, let me ask what it would cost Yolo county to convict Charles DeYoung, with Garoutte as Prosecuting Attorney, taking as a basis the cost of convictions during his past term, $4,958.37½ cents each? Do you think his celebrated Railroad case would be a drop in the bucket compared to it, where he had to try a week-minded boy three times before he could let him go. Forcing the unnecessary expense of two extra trials in order that he might obey the dictates of the Central Pacific Railroad Company, after having admitted that he did not believe a conviction could be obtained, but that the company wanted him prosecuted as long as there was a chance for conviction. Do you think the taxpayers of Yolo county ought to cast their votes for a man who will squander their means simply to satisfy the C. P. R. R. Company in prosecuting a man who could not be convicted under any circumstances, and against whom there was no real evidence upon which to base a solid prosecution. D. J.

[As to the conviction of DeYoung, we will state that as we have had but four days to figure on the probable cost, and not desiring to see the National Debt and the wealth of the Bonanza mines sunk into insignificance, we came to the conclusion not to publish it, and did not finish the calculation. As to the other questions, we pass them by as irrelevant and immaterial—Mr. Garoutte having no show of being elected, as Hudson Grant will lead him by between 200 and 300 votes on election day.—En.]

Vote for John D. Lawson for Sheriff.

A Letter from "Rebecca."

MADISON, Aug. 24, 1879.

ED. STANDARD.—Since my last I've been a long ways, and over considerable country, though not much waste. Having friends from the East for a time, and being anxious to show them around, (they having been through the lower portion of the State,) concluded as a finale, ere their return to civilization, to take a run to Bartlett. And 'twas a run—of hot days, hotter nights, with strong suggestions of greater heat to come in the way of gas springs, sulphur waters, roaring gas tunnels, etc., etc. Our friend concluded he was safe, being a meek and considerate follower; while you know we Californians take no heed of the morrow, except in present issues—political, social, etc. It is but a repetition of an old theme, a most deserving one, though, to expatiate on Bartlett and surroundings. Hundreds know of its delicious waters—delicious to the taste, wonderful in medicinal properties, grand beyond conception in curative properties. But I would fail in deserved praise, aside from its watery attractions if I failed to speak in praise of its present proprietors—genial, generous, hospitable in its fullest sense. In fact, they "know how to keep hotel." You know she of fault-finding fame has always felt that you should receive the worth of your money, particularly in hotel accommodations. Well, the proprietors at Bartlett are among the exceptions, for their example is a worthy one to follow. We went to Allen Springs for an afternoon, and stayed to partake of a delicious supper. Received most pleasant attention from the proprietors, to say nothing of "Uncle Porter." I can tell you the salute he gave a young widow in our party was "well taken." I was surprised, but concluded to attribute it, and all such positive demonstrations to the water—that's the way we do at Bartlett's. And would you believe, I was served with a cup of delicious "Extra Choice," but learned afterwards that much of the first-class materials came from Porter & Co., of your town; so you see what's in a name and reputation. Allen's is lovely in its surroundings, with capacious accommodations, and attractive company. Lots of good-looking women—several from Woodland—and I was there, and I just wish you could have been thereabouts to have dotted down notes and items—some of them good. Mrs. Hunt of your town says, "Rebecca, all praise Bartlett, and have so little to say of this place." Well, I guess Bartlett, like Barney, deserves all it gets, and its opponents, like many other worthy subjects, don't get all they deserve.

You can almost feel the excitement prevailing about now as you drive to our little town, and its effects are plain to be seen. The business places that deal out moist refreshment keep late hours. The boys that frequent them are terribly sunburned, and headache is almost an epidemic. And the dear women interested in said boys declare they'll be mighty glad when the 3d of September is past. Some of them (the ladies) wonder at the number of male callers, and wonder why in the world they don't wait till after the rains, 'tis so dusty and ruinous to good clothes and silk hats. Plenty more where those came from, boys, if you keep your seats, but "L'homme propose, L'homme dispose." No, there's no mistake—only a transposition.

Our educational advantages are again on the improve. Our school commences the first of September under the auspices of a lady teacher, well recommended. Our school is more orderly—the scholars more studious, with a lady than when governed by a male teacher. But then our boys have grown some since the last man left.

Madison hotel has raised its 25 cent meals just 12½ cents. One of the Woodland restaurants has raised its 25 cent lunch up to 50 cents, an improve in price—none in viands, while our genial obliging hosts of the Capital and Hilliker Hotel continue doing their best at the same old price, never varying in the time of peace or war, a crowd or quiet, always the same like your correspondent. REBECCA.

Vote for Hudson Grant for District Attorney.

The Truth of It.

ED. STANDARD.—I have been credibly informed that J. M. Kelley, candidate for Member of the State Board of Equalization in this District, has been circulating the report, and asking for sympathy on the strength of it, that he made a proposition to the Democratic State Central Committee to this effect: that both he and C. E. Wilcoxson, Democratic nominee, decline and have some third man nominated by both parties in order to unite forces and defeat the Republican nominee. Like some other of Mr. Kelley's electioneering statements the above is not true. Upon the testimony of Mr. Wilcoxson and the Secretary of the State Central Committee, no such proposition was ever made by Mr. Kelley nor any one authorized to speak for him. The only proposition made by Kelly, was that Mr. Wilcoxson decline and that he (Mr. Kelley) be substituted in his place on the Democratic ticket.

W. T. LUCAS,
Secretary Democratic Co. Cen'l Com.

Vote for H. B. Pendegast for County Clerk.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY PICTURES.—One of the great contrasts between the School Books used by the fathers and mothers of the land, when young, and those now used by the children, is the use of pictures. As a curious instance of illustrating the meaning of words by pictorial illustration, the pictures in the new edition of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary in connection with the following twelve words, Beef, Boiler, Castle, Column, Eye, Horse, Moldings, Phenology, Ravelin, Ships, Steam Engine, Timbers, illustrate and define the meaning of more than 340 words and terms, as may be seen by examining the Dictionary.

Vote for E. R. Bush for Superior Judge.

The meetings held by the Democratic candidates at Dunnigan and Knight's Landing, this week, were well attended. We have been told that D. N. Hershey, our candidate for the Assembly, made excellent speeches, and the Northern part of the county is solid for him.

The daily Republican publishes J. M. Kelley's record as member of the Constitutional Convention. He voted against seventeen of the twenty-two articles in the new law, but when he heard that a new party was to be formed, and that he would receive a nomination, his love for the instrument was very great.

CONTEMPTIBLE.

There seems to be an organized effort on the part of some persons, who are getting scared over John D. Lawson's popularity in this county, to spread the report that he has withdrawn from the fight. It is an organized effort, as there is an emissary in every precinct of the county who is spreading the lying report as fast as he can. We desire to state that Jno. D. Lawson has not withdrawn, but will do his level best from now until the going down of the sun on the 3d day of September to be elected to the office of Sheriff of Yolo county by a larger majority than that of which he is now assured. When such reports get started it is a sure sign that somebody is terribly scared, and, failing to find anything else with which to attack a man who is above reproach, resorts to a contemptible trick like this.

Vote for A. C. Kean for Treasurer.

Remember that the office of Superior Judge is an important one. That it will take a more than average lawyer to discharge the duties of the office acceptably, and a man who is not an invalid to keep his court open at all times for business. Remember that Judge Bush has had four years experience as County Judge, and has been an honor to the office; that he is one of the best lawyers in the county, and is the superior of either of his opponents in ability. Remember that he was in favor of the new Constitution and voted in favor of it, and in all cases where called upon to interpret the law under it would do it in the spirit in which it was intended it should be done.

It is generally conceded by all who are acquainted with the gentleman, that Bruce Pendegast will fill the office of County Clerk with as much ability as any man in the county. He is a young man who has passed the greater portion of his life in Yolo county, and has filled the office of School Superintendent with credit to himself and honor to the people. Bruce will poll the full Democratic vote and a large number of votes from the other parties because the great mass of the people of this county know him to be both honest and capable. He will be elected.

Winters Items.

On last Saturday night the N. C. P. held a political meeting at which R. Clark, Esq., Judge Johnson, and several other candidates addressed the public.

Mrs. Seeley, aged 66, the mother of George and Mack Seeley, died in this town on Wednesday last. Services were held by Rev. H. C. Culton at the Methodist Church, after which the remains were interred in the Masonic Cemetery.

Candidates in town every day this week.

Last night a Republican meeting at Sackett's Hall was addressed by D. M. Burns and others. A good audience was present.

A troop of negro minstrels gave an exhibition last Wednesday night, the audience being large and satisfied that they got their money's worth.

On Monday night the Democrats will hold a meeting to be addressed by the county candidates. S.

Vote for D. N. Hershey for the Assembly.

There is not a more worthy man before the people of Yolo county this year than the Democratic candidate for Superintendent of Schools, Jno. W. Goin. He has a teacher's certificate of the very highest grade, and is a gentleman of sterling worth and strict integrity. Both his opponents will be defeated.

School Books, both College and Public School, at St. Louis' Variety Store.

Fred. Klays, the next Assessor of Yolo county, was in town this week. He is the most competent man up for that office this year, and as he is a thorough Democrat he should have a very large majority. As he is popular, we expect to see him distance both his competitors.

A. C. Kean is the next Treasurer of Yolo county as sure as he is the present one. The citizens of this county are trying to see just how large a majority they can give him. It will be enormous, and a fitting tribute to a deserving officer.

On Thursday and Friday next, at Washington Hall, the two-headed Nightingale, Mlle. Christine, will be on exhibition. This lady is the eighth wonder of the world, and has drawn large houses wherever exhibited.

J. O. Maxwell, should be the next Recorder of Yolo county. He is a man against whom nothing can be said, and has the ability to make a splendid officer.

A Republican who is going to vote his party ticket admitted to us the other day that Harlan, Hershey, Bush, Lawson and Pendegast would be elected.

Be sure that the name of J. H. Harlan is on your ticket before you place it in the ballot-box on the 3d of September.

Every voter should read his ticket clear through before he deposits it in the ballot-box.

Vote for J. H. Harlan for Joint Senator.

Wit and Humor.

The man who finds a pocket book with cash in it doesn't look at a paper for three weeks.—[Puck.]

"Of the people, for the people, by the people," is the motto of some politicians.—[Oil City Derrick.]

The mosquito almost always succeeds in getting a speech from the person it honors with a serenade.—[Rochester Express.]

Scandal-mongers may learn from the frog. Once overpassed the season of his adolescence, he gives up tail-bearing.—[Yonkers Gazette.]

BROWN. "Can you break a five dollar bill?"

JONES. "I should like to break it, but unfortunately I'm broke myself."

A citizen of Fleming, Kentucky, fired at a rat, struck a keg of powder, blew his house to pieces, and had to jump into the river to keep from burning up. The rat remains unhurt.

GRANDMA. "Yes, children, when I was as young as you are, I used to walk in my sleep."

TOMMY (eagerly). "Say, gram'ma, what time did you make?"

A young lady, up in Berkshire county, Massachusetts, was stung on the lip by a bee the other day. We congratulate her on knowing where the honey was.—[New Haven Register.]

The clergyman in a certain town, as the custom is, having published the banns of matrimony between two persons, was followed by the clerk's reading the hymn beginning with these words: "Deluded souls, that dream of heaven!"

ASTRONOMY V. GASTRONOMY.—"Julius," said a Brooklyn gentleman to his colored servant, "don't you enjoy the astronomical phenomena these fine evenings?" "Dunno, sah," responded the darkey; "mush-mellens are my favorite fruit."

A Norwich tenant has been importuned so frequently for his rent that in a climax of exasperation the other day he turned to the landlord with the cogent and conclusive retort, "Now you needn't put on so many airs, old man."

Why, I owe enough in this town to buy up all your old houses!"

A clergyman, preaching a sermon on death, concluded with the following observation: "But even death, my brethren, so well deserved by mankind for their sins, the wisdom of Providence has, in its paternal kindness, put at the end of our existence; for only think what life would be worth if death were at the beginning!"

An old farmer intent on making his will was asked by the lawyer the name of his wife, when he gravely replied: "Well, indeed, I really don't recollect what it is; we've been married for upward of forty years, and I've always called her my old woman."

The lawyer left a blank, to be filled up when his old woman's name was ascertained.

In these days, when the temperance question absorbs so much of public attention, it may not be out of place to quote the saying of an eccentric English gentleman, a candidate for Parliament, at a recent meeting of his constituents. A man in the crowd called out: "What about the Liquor bill?"

"Well," said the candidate, "mine was uncommonly high last year. How was yours?"

"Bub, did you ever stop to think?" said a grocer recently, as he measured out half a peck of potatoes, "that these potatoes contain sugar, water and starch?" "No, I didn't," replied the boy, "but I heard mother say that you put peas and beans in your coffee, and about a pint of water in every quart of milk you sold."

The subject of natural philosophy was dropped right here.—[Herbert Spencer.]

An irascible old gentleman who formerly held the position of Justice of the Peace was recently accosted in the street in a manner that did not come up to his honor's idea of the respect due him.

"Young man," said he, "I fine you twenty shillings for contempt of court."

"Why, Judge," said the offender, "you are not in session."

"This court," replied the Judge, is always in session and consequently always an object of contempt."

The subject of impression at first sight was being talked over at the tea-table, when the lady whose duty it was to preside said she always formed an idea of a person at first sight, and found it to be generally correct.

"Mamma," said her youngest son, in a shrill voice, that attracted the attention of all present. "Well, my dear, what is it?"

replied the mother. "I want to know what was your opinion when you first saw me?"

They are so precocious in the neighborhood of Worcester, Mass. "My little seven-year-old girl," writes a friend, "was in the sitting-room alone with her uncle, and dreamily looking from the window. Without turning her head she said, 'Uncle Horace, eight and seven make fifteen, don't they?' He replied that she was right."

"Then," said she, in half soliloquy, "it is only eight years before I shall have a bean, and, oh! I dread it!"—[Harper's Magazine.]

"Have you enjoyed your strawberry festival, boys?" "Oh, yes, sir!"

"Then," asked the teacher, seeking to append a moral, "if you had slipped into my garden and picked those strawberries without my leave, would they have tasted as good as now?"

Every little boy in that stained and sticky company shrieked "No, sir!" "Why not?" "Cause," said little Thomas, "with the cheerfulness of conscious virtue, then we shouldn't have had sugar and cream with 'em."

THE LESSON HE HAD TO LEARN.—A pathetic story concerning the late Prince Louis Napoleon has escaped most of the chroniclers. With his father the Prince Imperial saw Isabella II. and her son Alfonso driving rapidly into Biarritz, both of them in tears, on their way from Spain.

"Where is the little boy going to?" asked the Prince. "To exile," answered the Emperor.

"And what is exile?" the child persisted. "Oh, that will be explained to you when you grow up," answered the father. Stern experience taught him the sad lesson.

Degenerate Manners.

The "old school" of manners has fallen into disrepute. Sir Chas. Grandison is a comical rather than a courtly figure to this generation; and the man whose manners may be described as Grandisonian is usually called a pompous and grandiloquent old prig. Certainly the elaborately-dressed gentleman speaking to a lady only with polished courtesy of phrase, and avoiding in her presence all coarse words and acts, handing her in the minutest with inexpressible grace and deference, and showing an exquisite homage in every motion, was a very different figure from the gentleman in a shooting-jacket or morning-sacque "chaffing" a lady with the freshest slang, and smoking in her face. They are undeniably different, and the latter figure is wholly free from Grandisonian elegance and elaboration.

But is he much more truly a gentleman? Is he our Sidney, our Chevalier Bayard, our Admirable Crichton? Is that refined consideration and gentle deference, which is the flower of courtesy, an old-fashioned folly?

The overwrought politeness is made very ridiculous on the stage, and Richardson is undoubtedly hard reading for the general consumer of novels. It is true, also, that fine manners do not always go with fine manners, and that Lovelace had a fascination of address which John Knox lacked. The chaff and slang of the Bayard of to-day are at least decent, and his morals probably purer than those of the courtly and punctilious old Sir Roger de Coverley. Possibly; but it has been wisely said that hypocrisy is the homage paid by vice to virtue.

The good manners of a man are a rich dress upon a diseased body. They are the graceful form of a vase full of dirty water. The liquid may be poisonous, but the vessel is beautiful. Some of the worst Lethargies in the world have a personal charm which is irresistible. Many a stately compliment was paid by a graciously bowing satyr in laced velvet coat and periwig, at the court of Louis the Great, and paid for the basest purpose; but the grace and courtesy were crowned with like plumage of living lines to deck carrion. They were not a part of the baseness, and you do not escape dirty water by breaking the vase. If the older morals were worse than the new, and the older manners were better, can not we who live to-day, and who may have every thing, combine the new morals and the old manners?

We can spare some elaboration of form, but we can not safely spare the substance of refined deference. If Romeo be permitted to treat Juliet as hostlers are supposed to treat bachelors, and as the heroes of Ffalding and Smollett treat Abigail upon a journey, they will both lose self-respect and mutual respect. It was a wise father who said to his son, "Beware of the woman who allows you to kiss her."

The woman who does not require of a man the form of respect, invites him to discard the substance. And there is one violation of the form which is recent and gross, and might be well cited as a striking illustration of the decay of manners. It is the practice of smoking in the society of ladies in public places, whether driving, or walking, or sailing, or sitting. There are preux chevaliers who would be honestly amazed if they were told they did not behave like gentlemen, who, sitting with a lady on a hotel piazza, or strolling in a public park, whip out a cigarette, light it, and puff as tranquilly as if they were alone in their rooms. Or a young man comes alone upon the deck of a steamer, and blows clouds of smoke in their faces, without even remarking that tobacco is disagreeable to some people. This is not, indeed, one of the seven deadly sins, but a man who unconcernedly sings false betrays that he has no ear for music, and the man who smokes in this way shows that he is not quite a gentleman.

But some ladies smoke! Yes, and some ladies drink liquor. Does that mend the matter? The Easy Chair has seen a lady at the head of her own table smoking a fine cigar. You will see a great many highly dressed women in Paris smoking cigarettes. Does all this change the situation? Does this make it more gentlemanly to smoke with a lady beside you in a carriage, or upon a bench on the piazza? But some ladies like the odor of a cigar. Not many; and the taste of those who sincerely do so can not justify the habit of promiscuous puffing in their presence. The intimacy of domesticity is governed by other rules; but a gentleman smoking would hardly enter his own drawing-room, where other ladies sat with his wife, without a word of apology. The Easy Chair is no King James, and is more likely to issue blasts of tobacco than blasts against it. But King James belonged to a very selfish sex, and a sex which seems often to suppose that its indulgences and habits are to be tenderly tolerated, for no other reason than that they are its habits. Therefore the young woman must defend herself by showing plainly that she prohibits the intrusion of which, if suffered, she is really the victim. In other times the Easy Chair has seen the lovely Laura Matilda unwilling to refuse to dance with the partner who had bespoken her hand for the German, although when he presented himself he was plainly down with wine. The Easy Chair has seen the hapless, foolish maid encircled by those Bacchic arms, and then a headlong whirl and dash down the room, ending in the promiscuous overthrow and downfall of maid, Bacchus and musicians.

If in the Grandisonian day the morals were wanting, it was something to have the manners. They at least were to the imagination a memory and a prophecy. They recalled the idyllic age when fine manners expressed fine feelings, and they foretold the return of Astrea to her ancient haunts. Here is young Adonis dreaming of a four-hand and a yacht, like any other gentleman. Let us hope that he knows the test of the gentleman not to be the ownership of blood-horses and a unique drag, but perfect courtesy founded upon fine human feeling—and consideration which rests upon manner as lightly as the bloom upon a fruit. It may be imitated, as gold and diamonds are.

But no counterfeit can harm it; and, Adonis, it is incompatible with smoking in a lady's face, even if she acquiesces.—EDITOR'S EASY CHAIR, in Harper's Magazine.

An Incident on Broadway.

One of those sunny March afternoons, when the sky is blue and soft as saffron, and the air full of balm—the spire of Grace Church tipped with sunset gold, and the plate-glass palaces along Broadway all in glitter as they reflected the silken robes of the hurrying throng—this is our scene and time.

She was just released from her weary day's work in the stifling book-binder's—the earnest, thrifty, and woman, and she breathed in the fresh air greedily, as she edged her way meekly amid her scornful sisterhood. Suddenly she paused in front of a fruit stand, the tropical gleam of golden oranges reminded her of the little white face that was wasting away on the lonely pillow at home, and she fingered her worn purse longingly.

"Have you any one-cent oranges, sir?"

"We don't deal in one-cent customers—better go about your business, woman," said the man, contemptuously.

Oh, the heart-sickness of poverty! She had proceeded but a few steps before she again stopped, involuntarily, before a display of cut flowers. It was not the dazzling carnations, nor the imperial pink azaleas that attracted her eye; it was the knot of wild violets, blue and dewy, like those that grew under the old apple-tree at home, when she was a girl. How little pining Willie's eyes would sparkle at the sight of those blue violets!

"How much are these violets?" she asked, with trembling eagerness.

"A shilling," said the dealer shortly; he did not believe the faded-looking woman would be a customer, and was vexed at being interrupted in enlorging to a splendidly dressed lady some rare hot house blossoms.

She turned away with a weary sigh, but the lady had noticed her wan face with pitying kindness.

"Give me the wild flowers," said she; and then touching the woman's shoulder, she added, "Take these violets; you seem to wish for them so much!"

The pale face lighted up. Ah, it was worth a shilling to call forth such a smile!

"Thank you, lady, it was for my little boy, and he is dying!"

Dying—it was a strange fancy to the jeweled child of luxury. She could not imagine it in all the glow of sunshine and vitality that surrounded her, and yet it struck a warning chill to her heart. Dying, to think that people could die!

"Oh, mother, they are so beautiful. Put them where I can look at them all the time—they make me think of lovely green woods!"

And when midnight came, the little child set out on his far journey to the mansions of his father's house, smiling upon the violets with his last earthly glance. The broken-hearted mother could shroud him in no glistening satin or costly lace; but when the little pine coffin came, she sprinkled the blue-eyed fragrant blossoms upon his breast and so laid him down to his everlasting slumbers.

Did the Recording Angel write down no history of that brief incident in his book of light! Ah, the day will come when riches are no longer of any avail, and that one deed of kindness will be more precious to the daughter of wealth than all Golconda's diamonds.

He needs no more weary watching now, that sick and suffering child; he is gathering the violets that grow along the rivers of Paradise!

An Extraordinary Romance.

A very curious bit of romance comes in a gossiping letter from an ancient city in the west of England. It appears that an old tradesman of that place, who had for some time been suffering from the effects of a paralytic-stroke, came to London a few months ago for the benefit of his health, and in a few weeks married the landlady of the house in which he lodged. He made a marriage settlement, and a will in favor of his new wife, altogether ignoring his children by a former marriage. In a few weeks the old man died, and there the matter would have ended but for some very extraordinary after circumstances. One of the executors of the will—a legal gentleman living in London—went down to the city for the purpose of attending to the trusts under the will, and in looking over the papers of the deceased discovered that several years ago the latter would have inherited property of the now estimated value of about eighty thousand pounds if there had not been a "missing link"—the marriage certificate of his grandfather and grandmother—in his pedigree. No proof whatever of this marriage could be found, and so all expectation of ever acquiring the property had vanished from the mind of the deceased.

The executor, having leisure on his hands and being interested in the affair, set about making inquiries and searches in the matter, the result being that last week the proofs of the marriage were discovered at a village church some few miles distant. The question now remains to be settled whether the property goes to the widow—the old man's sole heir—or to the heir at law—his eldest son. Whether the widow's claim is barred by the Statute of Limitations or not is a question that will have to be settled by the judges at Westminster. It would be a fitting climax to the story if this large property, by a single stroke of the pen by an old and feeble man, should be diverted from his children and his family into the hands of one who was a total stranger to him six months before his death.

Mrs. Shoddy is thinking about keeping a carriage. She says she has thought it all over, and come to the conclusion that brooches are almost too large; that these ere coupons are too shut up, but that a nice stylish pony-phantom seems to be just the thing.

Detroit Currency.

Of course there are thousands and thousands of people who have to live outside of Detroit in summer time, and all that we can say is that we pity 'em.

High school and seminary exhibitions are past and gone, but it is not too late to bet ten to one that the girl who wore the best clothes was the most satisfied.

Let a $500 dog bite a fifty cent man, and such a howl goes up as cannot be quelled until a city is mad-dog ordinance from curbstone to the top of bill-boards.

On this side of the big pond we ask who struck Billy Patterson. On the other side they want to know who hit Lord Chelmsford. Owing to the climate, you see.

The Courier-Journal says the water is so low at Pittsburg that the turtles are wearing tin roofs to keep off the rays of the sun and green goggles to keep the dust out of their eyes.

Cox, the murderer, will not be hanged before mid-winter, though formally sentenced to pull the rope in August. He is such a pet that it would be a pity to hang him all at once.

Only eighteen persons were killed in celebrating the Fourth. That's a very small matter considering the amount of fun there was had by 47,000,000 people who didn't get hurt at all.

A New Jersey paper knows of a sea captain who drank six cock-tails made of arnica instead of gin, and he couldn't taste the difference until he saw the empty bottle and its label.

The sudden paleness which sometimes overspreads a young man's face in church may be caused by quickened conscience, but the chances are that he has swallowed some tobacco juice.

Charleston can beat the country on sunstrokes, and that shows you the both of all this talk about fresh and cool sea-breezes. A seat in the horse-barn, with all doors open, is cool enough for anybody.

A Pennsylvania man had the carache for six months before a doctor found out that he had a honey bee in it. Any remarks on the size of his ears would be out of order. The bee probably took it for a patent hive.

His PORTRAIT.—While one of the sanitary police was moving through the alleys of Cass avenue the other day, he came upon two bad nuisances at once. One family had thrown a great heap of garbage over the fence, and the other had dumped over an old mattress and two or three dead cats. The citizen living between the two heaps came out to the fence holding his nose, and the officer asked:

"How long have these nuisances existed?"

"Oh, about a month," was the reply. "And you haven't lodged a complaint at the City Hall?"

"No."

"Why, this horrible stench must float right into your house?"

"Yes, so it does; but I wasn't fixed to say anything. This man over here lends me his lawn-mower twice a week, and my wife borrows most of our tea and coffee of the other one. I kinder figured on it, and concluded not to raise a row unless the mower got too dull or the brand of coffee run down."

In reviewing Mr. John Bigelow's edition of "Franklin's Life and Works," the Athenaeum says:

Benjamin Franklin is one of the few men whose place of residence in London is thought worthy of commemoration. Whoever walks down Craven street will see a medallion in front of a house there with these words inscribed on it: "Lived here Benjamin Franklin, printer, philosopher and statesman, born 1706, died 1790." In the National Portrait Gallery a portrait of Franklin hangs among those of the worthies whose memories we delight to honor, and it is probable that if he could revisit this world he would find himself as much respected in this country as in that of his birth."

Though opinions may differ as to the country which does him the more real honor, yet it is indisputable that his writings are equally popular in both. Indeed, not many persons who have written in English address all English reading persons more directly than Franklin, and none of his works has had a larger circle of readers than the memoirs of his life.

DULLNESS CAUSED BY ILL-HEALTH.—Without doubt, a deal of dullness owes its origin to ill-health. People with languid circulations are seldom vivacious or amusing, and it is hard to be bright and lively when suffering pain; but indigestion, on the other hand, often makes its victims amusingly ill-natured and uncharitable. Of the vices, selfishness is productive of dullness; but malice, slander and false witness, with all their heinousness, often afford entertainment to listeners. Those who invariably shun dull people make a great mistake, for dullards are often very trustworthy and true friends, while they are not usually well informed on certain topics. If amusing people are the most popular, dull ones are often the best beloved. Mephistopheles was an entertaining companion, and amusing men are too fond of asking their friends to back their bills.—English Magazine.

UTILIZING OLD FRUIT CANS.—Even old fruit cans have their use, and can be utilized in the following manner: The can is pierced with one or more pin holes, and then sunk in the earth near the roots of the strawberry or tomato or other plants. The pin holes are to be of such size that when the can is filled with water the fluid can only escape into the ground very slowly. Thus a quart can, properly arranged, will extend its irrigation to the plant through a period of several days; the can is then refilled. Practical trials of this method of irrigation leave no doubt of its success. Plants thus watered flourish and yield the most bounteous returns throughout the longest droughts. In all warm localities, where water is scarce, the planting of old fruit cans, as here indicated, will be found profitable as a regular gardening operation. A hint to the wise is sufficient.

Successful Life.

A young German came to California, nearly thirty years ago, determined to get rich. He worked hard. He lived cheaply as possible. Every dollar that he earned or saved he invested in real estate, or loaned at four per cent. a month on good security. The result was that he became a millionaire. Yet when his income was nearly a million dollars a year, he lived in shabby apartments and boarded at the cheapest restaurants. His one object in life was the accumulation of property. Everybody regarded him as a cold-blooded, close-fisted, iron-hearted man.

This successful(?) miser brought disease upon him by overwork, and the doctors prescribed for him a sea voyage, so he determined to visit his native land. He went to a celebrated watering place, hoping to be benefited by its baths. The village where his parents had lived and were buried was five miles distant. He thought that he would visit their graves. But being too poor to hire a carriage he walked to the graveyard. Finding at the gate that the sexton demanded a small fee from visitors, he said that he would not go in. But passing around to the rear of the enclosure he climbed over the wall. He looked at the graves of his parents, let us hope with some filial feeling, and then tried to go out as he had entered. The sexton, however, was too sharp for him. He caught him and took him before the burgomaster. There the millionaire denied that he had been in the graveyard at all. The sexton stoutly averred that he had seen him climb the wall. The fatigue of his long walk and the excitement of this altercation brought on a paroxysm of heart disease, and he fell down dead in the burgomaster's office.

Such was the "last of earth" in the case of this successful man. He left his wealth to relatives with whom he had scarcely any intercourse during his life; in whom he felt no special interest, and who, though glad of course to get the money, cannot have much respect for their miserly kinsman. So the eight millions that the man gathered did not make him happy in life or death, and he could take none of it to invest in the spirited world. He is as poor there as the poorest beggar who died in the almshouse.

Now many of our readers will say, "If I was worth eight millions of dollars I would get more enjoyment out of it." Are you sure that you would? The habits that one must form in acquiring wealth are not easily broken. There is nothing that so shrivels a human soul as getting money for its own sake.

Send for Mother.

"Dear me! it wasn't enough for me to nurse and raise a family of my own, but now, when I'm old and expect to have a little comfort here, it's all the time 'send for mother!'" And the dear old soul growls and grumbles, but dresses herself as fast as she can, notwithstanding. After you have trotted her off, and got her safely in your home, and she flies around, administering remedies and rebukes by turns, you feel easier. It's all right now, or soon will be, mother's come.

In sickness, no matter who is there or how many doctors quarrel over your case, everything goes wrong, somehow, till you send for mother. In trouble, the first thing you think of is to send for mother.

But this has its ludicrous as well as its touching aspect. The verdant young couple, to whom baby's extraordinary grimaces and alarming yawns, which threaten the dislocation of its chin; its wonderful sleeps, which it accomplishes with its eyes half open, and no perceptible flutter of breath on its lips, causing the young mother to imagine it is dead this time, and to shriek out, "send for mother!" in tones of anguish; this young couple, in the light of experience which three or four babies bring, find that they have been ridiculous and given mother a good many trots for nothing.

Did anyone ever send for mother and she failed to come? Never—unless sickness or the infirmities of age prevented her. As when in childhood, those willing feet responded to your call, so they still do, and will continue to do as long as they are able. And when the summons comes which none yet have disregarded, though it will be a happy day for her, it will be a very dark and sad one for you, when God, too, will send for mother!

A Newark butcher propounds the theory that the principal cause of distress among the people was that they all want a porterhouse steak. There was sound philosophy in the remark. Plain food and simple dress are not enough.

A Connecticut town boasts of a young man so timid that he cannot look a needle in the eye. Many young ladies are troubled with similar fears whenever they can get anyone else to do their sewing.
